

December 2008 MoneyMinute – Pet Insurance: Does it Make Sense?

By Rich Chambers, CFP®

Pet health costs can be quite significant especially as your pet gets older (hey, just like us!). Some of our clients spend $5,000 per year on veterinary bills.

Veterinary Pet Insurance

A significant provider of pet insurance is Veterinary Pet Insurance, at <http://www.petinsurance.com>.

What's covered:

“Nose-to-Tail” Protection for the Life of Your Pet

VPI offers two major medical plans: the VPI Superior Plan or the VPI Standard Plan and Pet WellCare Protection riders for optional routine care.

VPI policies renew annually, and claims filed during a pet's annual policy term are not considered to be "pre-existing" or "exclusionary" when you renew coverage for the next year. VPI also offers unlimited benefits for the lifetime of your pet. VPI pays 90% of covered veterinary expenses up to the benefit schedule, less your $50 per-incident deductible.

The VPI plan can cover:

- Accidents
- Illnesses
- X-Rays
- Cancer
- Prescriptions
- Hospitalization

The Wellcare plan can cover:

- Vaccinations
- Heartworm
- Flea Control
- Urinalysis
- Dental
- Spay

Quotes, using Angus, ICM's Scottish Terrier:

5	$29.09	$22.00
9	$42.59	$22.00
VPI does not start new coverage for pets age 10 or older

Quotes, using Merlin, ICM's Tabby cat:

Age	VPI Superior Monthly	Wellcare Premier Monthly
1	$16.08	$22.00
5	$19.83	$22.00
9	$28.92	$22.00

Important items to consider when choosing an insurance company:

- Does the company have stability and proven success?
- Does the company employ certified and trained professionals?
- Does the company receive veterinary recognition?
- Are you offered annual policies with honest renewal terms?
- Will you receive renewable benefits?
- Do you understand how reimbursements are determined?
- Does the company specify coverage exclusions?
- Does the company provide broad coverage and unlimited benefits?
- Does the company believe in routine care for your pet?
- Are you limited to a veterinary network or required to pre-certify?
